

1. New students from China will find that sometimes they would rather be with other Chinese students but not try to get involved with local people. Although it is something not good because it won't help them to understand the different culture, it is still a more familiar and comfortable way to do so.

Contact information

Yifei Zhao

Chuanqi Chen

Jinan Zhou

Qiao Jiang

William

Harry

Students above are students living in the same building with me

Bowen Jiang

Shouyan Li

Cheng Chen

Students above are students living in different Residence Hall, knowing them in some clubs.

A native student living in my Residence Hall talked about his idea of meeting with others

Questions

To Chinese Students

Would you like to make some friends with U.S students? Why?

Would the cultural difference become a serious problem to you when you broaden your social circle?

Would you like to join some parties of local students? Why?

Would you like to hang out with local students? Why?

Would you like to have a local student as your roomie? Why?

Is this more comfortable for you to hang out with students from the same culture background or different?

To local students

Would you like to make friends with students from different background?

Is this more comfortable for you to hang out with students from the same culture background or different?

2. About the ADHD medicine used for better grades

It is a very terrible thing for a Chinese student to hear that some students may use drugs to help them study when they first time come here. But actually, it seems to be a very common thing to students in USA

Questions:

To students

Have you ever used pills for better exam?

If the answer is yes

Do you think if it is indeed effective?

How many pills you take in one period?

How do you get the pills?

Do you feel anything wrong on your health after you take the pills?

If the answer is no

Do you know if any of your friends have used drugs for better grade?

How do you feel about this kind of things?

To doctors or other professional people

Is there any side-effect to use ADHD medicine?

Would students with no ADHD use these drug cause any health problems?

To Professors in various college

Do you know if there is any student who has used the ADHD for better grades?

What is your opinion against this?

Problem for now: I've talked with 7 students, but they seem not to be very open to talk about this. Partly because of the legal issue, but partly because this is indeed something students know, but they would like to keep it secret.