

Amari Maisonet
Journalism 199
September 14th, 2017

Student senator made a statement in support of medical marijuana in university housing. Beginning in 2013 a program allowed students to apply for a medical cannabis registry identification card. Even with this students still have few options of use because the university fears impact on federal funding because it is still federally illegal. “Mostly they hide it or lie about it,” said the senator. Students have also admitted to breaking the rules to get “the medical care that I needed.”