

Morgan Anderson

Second Story

JOUR 199

23 September 2018

After further investigation, we have received more information pertaining to the case of Christopher Young, 45. Young is a Social Studies teacher at Peabody-Burns High School and has been charged with eight felony counts against two female students. Affiant Chief of Police, Bruce F. Burke, has investigated the two students, as well as family members, and Christopher Young himself.

Through Burke's investigation, he has found that Young spent multiple nights with the students, received and sent naked pictures to the females, and engaged in many sexual acts with the two students. After initiating search warrants on both Young and the students' phones, he found a multitude of naked pictures and graphic text messages exchanged. The parents of the two females have complied with investigators to show their children as victims of the situation, but one has admitted that Young and one of the students were committed. Young was found to have given one of the students a "promise ring" to constitute their commitment. After looking through security tapes, Young was found to have his classroom door locked multiple mornings with the students inside, was seen standing outside of his classroom while he had a class in session and was seen sneaking into hallway corridors during school hours with the students.

Young will still have to pay a $50,000 surety bond, but if he is not present on his court date April 16th, he will have to pay an additional $100,000. The names of the two students have been omitted for privacy reasons.