

Matt Rice - Is it okay if I record this interview?

Emily Browne - Yeah

MR - Okay, so why did you choose to join a sorority?

EB - Um, my sister's in one and everyone that I knew from high school that was a freshman last year was in one and they all really liked it. And I though the philanthropy work was nice.

MR - So what do you mean by philanthropy work?

EB - Well, my sorority's philanthropy is domestic violence, so we do things to like, help raise money to help protect against domestic violence.

MR - Do you pair up with another Fraternity for the philanthropy or is that all just the sorority?

EB - I think there is events where we do pair up with them, but our main philanthropy event is a golf tournament and that's just with "A Chi O".

MR - How was the rush process like?

EB - It was really hectic and intimidating. All the girls were like, really intense and passionate about what they were talking about. And going in not knowing anything about it was a little scary, but in the end I think the process worked really well.

MR - So would you say you're glad with your choice to join a sorority freshman year on campus?

EB- Yeah I think it will help me get integrated with the school.

MR - Alright, thank you.

EB - Thanks.
