Elevator pitch

Does Bromley Hall have mold growing in the vents? Ever since I moved in to Bromley, I have been constantly sick with sinus issues. People had been saying that their air conditioning vent has mold on it. When my roommates and I checked our vent, we saw what we thought to be mold as well. I looked up the symptoms of breathing in mold. They include runny nose, cough, post nasal drip, watery eyes, etc.. These are all the symptoms that my roommates and I have been dealing with. We called the maintenance guy to come take a look at it. He said that what is in the vents is just insulation and not mold. He then sprayed it with bleach just in case. Many other residents of Bromley have had similar issues. The question is- what is the substance in the vents? Mold or insulation? I plan on interviewing residents as well as the maintenance worker to get each side of the story. I could then get a specialist to come in and open up the vent to find the truth.
